.25 2.0 576.00 0.00 906.00 What is the right way to achieve it? Thank you! A: I think you need to add the second parameter to wget such as: wget -r -k -l 1 -np -k -C -l0 -nd -c -O $finalDir -r - download recursively -k - download following links -l 1 - limit maximum number of links to follow -np - no progress bar -k - follow any redirects -c - don't download the metadata (Content-type, headers, etc) -l0 - use maximum verbosity 0 From the man page: -r, --recursive Download directory trees in a single operation The answer is to use the -C option, and you should also use the -O option to specify the location of the output file. wget -r -k -l 1 -np -C -l0 -nd -c -r -- recursively -k -- follow links (see man page for details) -l 1 -- follow 1 maximum links -C -- don't save metadata to file -l0 -- output file to stdout, not a file -nd -- don't download the file content I had the same problem as you using the wget command. However after I installed the --recursive option it worked fine. wget -r -np -l 1 -k -c -O $finalDir

The -l and -k parameters are described in the man page as follows: -l, --limit-rate L, --rate L Limit the download rate to L Kb/s. -l, --limit-rate=L, --rate=L Limit the download rate to L Kb/s. The limit may 82157476af
